> Came here during October, and there were Halloween decorations everywhere and some of them were a little gruesome, and it was making me feel sickly while eating my food. Both dining in and having this food catered at work both times the taco shells were too chewy and the fillings were Honestly not that good. I've also tried the burrito and torta which as an avid Hispanic food enjoyer left a lot to be desired. Staff were friendly and kind but the food just wasn't it ngl

> Showed up with kids and asked for a table for 4. There were 3 empty tables and about 10 people waiting. The hostess said it would be 2-3 hours. I asked if they take reservations or if there were folks in line that weren't there, she said no. I asked how it could possibly be 2-3 hours wait, she smugly responded, 2-3 hours. She wanted us to leave and it was clear.

> Everyone raved about this restaurant so as an avid lover of Mexican cuisine we patroned Rreal Taco, with reservation made, for our birthday last night. So, this was our first time at the restaurant. We ordered the taco platter for $50, 2 orders of rice, black beans and refried beans, drinks and mocktail...our server Angel was good and hearing it was both my husband and my birthday even said he'd "hook us up" with something special. The tacos were so dry they were near inedible...we only could taste the char; more like charcoal; it was not appetizing. The salsa, like a pureed flavorless tomato sauce. Top it all off, a female server, helping with our table, was literally slinging plates, chips, etc. haphazardly at us, never acknowledging us nor speaking to us...we literally were grabbing for items not to fall over. Finally, Angel returned to tell us how to pay him but, never mentioned the birthday item he was going to "hook us up" with again. We spent over $135 on a bad meal and sub par service. The only reason we added a 20% gratuity is because of who we are despite the terrible birthday dinner. Plus parking was $23 for 2 hours. Terrible.

> This 1 star is for the To Go service. I walked in to pick up my order. There was a man at the front screen and several workers were behind him. He did not even acknowledge the fact that I was waiting. I stood there for a couple minutes right him front of him. He never bothered to greet me or even say, “hold on for a moment.” I got so frustrated that I went to the hostess in the front to express my anger at not even being acknowledged while waiting to pick up my food. She quickly went back and got my food in less than a minute as it was sitting on the shelf behind the rude gentleman. If I could have canceled my order, I would have. I will never patronize this establishment again based off of my treatment today.

> This was my first expierence at Rreal Tacos as my friends had recommended the place for drinks. But instead of having good drinks and a good expierence I had one of the worst services I’ve ever gotten. Went to the bar and gave our order to one of the bartenders, 20 minutes later and still no drinks but the the couples that sat down right after us got theirs (plus their food). 10 more minutes go by and my partner called for one of the bartenders attention and asked for our drinks, finally we get our drink and thank them for it. My partner asks for a second drink and as the drink was more flown to her than given as even the mint leaf on to of the drink went flying. Not sure why we were getting attitude as we were nothing but polite and had more than patience. Finally we are done with the drinks and ready to go and had to wait for another 20 minutes as we couldn’t get the bartenders attention as they kept avoiding coming to where we were sitting(by now the other two couples got wonderfully attentive service and were already out to door). We are given the machine to pay and it had the wrong item listed on it, couldn’t even tell the bartender right away about the wrong item as they just gave us the machine and walked away so we had to wait again for another 10 minutes and told them about the wrong item. Not sure if there was miscommunication between the bartenders regarding our section or it if was just straight up discrimination. Will not come back to this one but will give it another shot at another location.

> idk WHAT happened, but there was some loud ruckus and scared the whole patio, people were running, and under the tables. the waitress spilled water on me and my friend, we spent $300+ and didn’t get an explanation, an apology or anything. with the state of the world we need to all feel safe and cared for as much as we can. hopefully that doesn’t happen again, whatever it was -_-

> We have taken our friendly dog to this location probably 12 to 15 times. We called this afternoon to make sure we could be on the patio with heaters on since it was going to be cold. When we arrived we were told we could only be in the open section that had no heaters. We were told that other people might not like being around the dog. We will not be returning despite liking the food!

> (Translated by Google) I went there to eat, but the prices were very high, and I only ordered a small birria pizza. I ended up paying $73. They charge for the location, not the service. I don't recommend it. (Original) Yo fui a comer pero los precios muy altos y sólo pedí una pizza birria pequeña terminé pagando 73 dólares ahí cobran por el lugar no por el servicio no lo recomiendo

> Edit after Alex's response: I appreciate your response and concern, nevertheless this happened a couple of times now, noticed that for take out orders the quality of the meat is way lower, leveraging the client not being onsite would be an advantage for the restaurant. Fortunately i had ordered through Uber eats and opened a claim in uber eats and they gave me a refund, so no major concern. Lesson learned! I'll reach out next time i'm eating onsite just to say hi, thanks again Be careful, do not order the Pastor Torta to go, unfortunately have received undercooked meat and full of fat and nerves, it was really disgusting, for everything else no worries.

> I usually just would pick up a messed up order. But they’ve done this twice. Missed queso with chips on first order (only came with sour cream). Second time they didn’t place chips in bag and gave a small sized queso dip. Also got me sick, they’re always crowded and messing up orders. While in there, they gave a door dasher the wrong food. Although a high volume crowd, no organization and I waited 7 minutes just to pick up a to go order. Won’t be returning, and I tipped….
