> Unfortunately, this is one of the best Mexican food restaurants in this local region. I used to be a big fan of this restaurant chain (as I am from California and grew up on authentic Mexican food); however, after noticing that the food quality was much more poor with delivery services, I decided to only go in to the local restaurant in Decatur... then my fiance and I noticed that the quality was getting worse in the restaurant, so finally (because we did start with loving this restaurant around 2023), we gave Chamblee another try a few days ago. When we went, I ordered a Birria Quesadilla, and chips and queso. The queso was extremely watered down, to where it almost didn't even taste like queso. The quesadilla was uncomfortably filled with meat; I had to pick off about 30-50% of it to even start enjoying it. Finally, the birria was not good at all, it did not stick to the quesadilla at all. It was in fact more like a vegetable stock and felt like I was just making my quesadilla soggy with water. I switched to just using the table sauce instead of the birria. When we spoke to the server about the birria, she explained to me what birria is... which I already knew, but she made it seem as though this watered down version is how it's always been and how is supposed to be. We can only be disappointed so many times. Unfortunately, we are done visiting Rreal Tacos. It's time to find a new Mexican restaurant.

> Terrible service. Terrible food... not worth the time. We let a manager know our issues and they still weren't resolved.

> I am writing to formally report an unacceptable and highly negligent experience at your Decatur location on March 19, 2026 at approximately 6:55 PM. I was seated at the bar (right side) with two friends, and this entire incident should be easily verified via CCTV footage. From the start, the bartender demonstrated a concerning lack of basic service standards and hygiene. My margarita was initially served without tajín on the rim. While this may seem minor, the bartender took the same glass back after it had already been served and altered it, which is unsanitary and unacceptable. The situation worsened when straws were handled improperly. The bartender placed multiple straws into one of my friend’s drink (a strawberry margarita) and then distributed those same straws into our other drinks. This created a clear cross-contamination issue, exposing us to potential allergens such as strawberry or red dye without any regard for health and safety. However, the most serious issue was financial negligence. My card was charged $74.89 for a completely different customer's tab—someone not even in my party. When I brought this to the bartender's attention, I was told it was "just a hold" and that it would be removed. I was then told the transaction was deleted and reprocessed correctly. Despite this, the charge remains on my account as of the next business day. No receipt was provided at the time of these transactions—I had to request one from a woman I believe was the manager on duty, who was equally unhelpful and dismissive. I was never given proof of the reversal only the receipt that the other person paid it, nor any clear explanation of next steps. What is most alarming is the complete lack of urgency, accountability, or customer care shown by both staff and management. I was made to feel as though I was overreacting, despite being charged more than double my actual bill. No effort was made to correct the situation promptly, offer reassurance, or provide any form of service recovery. I have since submitted a complaint through your website and attempted to call the location, only to have my call answered and then disconnected, followed by no response on subsequent attempts as it has been 24 hours and there has been no money credited back to my account . I explained several times that it took the money immediately . Maybe he pressed something in error but I had never had this happen and not provided with a receipt for the refund because they keep saying it's a hold but it took the other person's tab from my account and it wasn't just a hold . This level of negligence—both in food safety and financial handling—is unacceptable. Charging a customer for someone else's tab and failing to resolve it immediately is a serious issue that should never occur under any circumstance. I am requesting immediate clarification and resolution, including confirmation of the refund and an explanation of how this situation will be addressed to prevent it from happening again. This experience has been extremely disappointing, especially given that I am currently in Atlanta due to international travel disruptions. I expected a basic level of professionalism and accountability, neither of which was demonstrated. Immediate action is required. Please contact me, my information was provided via the feedback form earlier. Kind Regards, Ms. Davis , M.Ed

My husband and I visited Real Tacos around 3 PM and sat at the bar. The bartender at that time was excellent—very attentive, friendly, and provided great service. However, once the shift changed, the experience went downhill. The new staff member did not pay attention to customers at all, and the level of service dropped significantly. There was also food left on the bar that wasn't cleaned up, which made the environment feel unprofessional. I also ordered a pineapple guava margarita, and I'm not sure it was made correctly or with the right tequila, which was disappointing. It was frustrating to see such a big difference in service during the same visit.

I usually order quesadillas and they usually are dry and have way more cheese. I don't know if they ran out but it also took them dang near 45 mins to prepare my food after I put the order for pick up. I'm disappointed because I > usually enjoy and paid my money for something that taste awful
